History [edit]

Early history [edit]

In the 10th century, Charles, Duke of Lower Lorraine constructed a fort on Saint-Géry Island, the furthest inland point at which the Senne river was still navigable. This was the seed of what would become Brussels. By the end of the 11th century, an open-air marketplace was set up on a dried-up marsh near the fort that was surrounded by sandbanks. The market was called the Nedermerckt, or Lower Market.^[9]

The market likely developed around the same time as the commercial development of Brussels. A document from 1174 mentions a lower market (Latin: forum inferius) not far from the port on the Senne

Identifiers for other data

Adding Wikidata links to OpenStreetMap individually is time consuming

Better to automate it

Different licenses

Wikidata is licensed CC0 or Public Domain

OpenStreetMap uses
the Open Database License (OdbL)

Copying data from OpenStreetMap to Wikidata would violate the OdbL

Different intellectual property jurisdiction

OpenStreetMap asserts database rights which exist under European law

Wikidata operates under USA intellectual property rules which asserts that facts are not protected

OpenStreetMap has strict rules about robot editing

Candidate matches need to be checked for false positives

Machine-assisted editing is a good compromise
